FIFTEENTH YEAR GETTYSBURG, PA., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st, 1917. PRICE TWO CENTS

TAKE BIG CROWD OF SOLDIER BOYS

Nearly Two Hundred Captured in Hanover by Mounted Police and Brought Home.

PLACED IN BALL FIELD

Then Marched Back to Gettysburg where Punishment Awaited them. Violated Typhoid Ban.

Sixty mounted military police made a grand round-up in Hanover between nine o'clock and midnight last evening, and took between 175 and 200 soldiers who had violated camp rules and were spending the evening in the neighboring town and at the fair. The men were herded in the Blue Ridge base ball park from midnight until six o'clock this morning when they were marched back to Gettysburg to receive the full measure of discipline for their offense.

Hanover has been banned for some weeks by the camp authorities owing to the appearance of typhoid in the town and the immediate vicinity, but the fair was too great an inducement and a big crowd finally decided to take chances. Wednesday night several dozen of the boys went down and had a fine time without any interference. News of the successful trip evidently spread and there was a general invasion Thursday evening. The "M. P." forces got busy and but few got back the way they went down.

When the sixty mounted men arrived at Hanover a number were detailed to guard all the roads leading toward Gettysburg, another detail went to the fairgrounds, and the balance took the town.

Forty offenders were caught at the fair grounds and marched in to Centre Square. All else was forgotten when the military police swooped down on the midway, and there was a grand scattering of soldiers in an effort to avoid arrest. The exits were well guarded, however, and the net was closely drawn.

The prisoners were held in the Square while the scouring of the town itself began. Some tried to escape by running down alleyways, others hid in buildings, and some others used various odd means to get away but without success. Few offered resistance, once they were caught, and only one or two who had secured liquor put up fight. One of these stepped out in front of the other prisoners and announced "Shoot me".

It made no difference if the soldiers were walking with girls, whether they were riding in automobiles, or what they were doing, the military police jumped in and took them. In the excitement a number of Hanover soldiers home on furlough were arrested, and it was with difficulty that they were able to convince the police that they were not from the Gettysburg camp.

Hanover had one of its most exciting times as the mounted soldiers herded the others together and the whole town turned out for the affair. The outposts guarding the roads brought in a number they had secured, and finally all were rounded up.

They were then put in line for the march and, with the mounted guard in front, behind, and on the sides, the procession started toward home, but at McAllister Field, they stopped, opened the gates and marched in, where a prison camp was established for the night. The men made the best of it, but accommodations on bleachers and grandstand are not of the most comfortable and, when morning dawned, it saw a sore crowd of soldiers who had paid dearly for an evening's fun and knew further punishment was ahead before they would have paid in full.

The trip home saw the men tired, listless, disgusted, and disheartened and they were on their way from six o'clock until almost noon. Their punishment will be meted out in due time and doubtless their experience will put a crimp in further Hanover journeys until the ban is lifted.

CHORUSES SANG

Yorkers Please Large Audience in Evening Program.

Many persons, both soldiers and civilians, were attracted to the Gettysburg Academy campus Thursday night for the concert by the choruses from the York Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., and all were delighted with the recital. The program included numbers by the individual and combined choruses, several quartets, and some special selections, all of which were enjoyed.

The organization showed natural ability and the finish which comes through careful training. The treat was highly enjoyed and much appreciated. The visitors made the trip by automobile.

TOPTON EXCURSION

Will Bring Nine Trains here First of October.

Saturday, October sixth, has been selected as the date for the annual excursion from the Tipton Orphans' School. Advice received at the local depot tell that nine trains will be run, and it is expected that the camp here will make the crowd one of the largest in recent years.

MULES CHANGE MEET'S RESULT

Seventh Regiment Team Declared Champions after Disputed Race is Run.

Baiky mules changed the result of the athletic meet the soldiers held on Nixon Field this week. The results of the mule race that day were in dispute and it was decided to have them run over—or balked over. Thursday afternoon was picked for the exhibition and the Seventh Infantry won.

The Fifty Ninth had been announced as winner of the meet but the loss of the mule event cost them this distinction. In addition, one of the running races was ruled out because not all of the entrants had received due notice.

The final official score is as follows: Seventh, 35; Fifty Ninth, 31; Sixtieth, 21; Fifty Eighth, 11; Fourth, 8; Sixty First, 7; Provisional Battalion, 4.

Company A, of the Seventh, and Company A, of the Fifty Ninth, are tied for company prize each having ten points. Their star entrants, Steele and Waltz, were tied at this score for individual point prize and Steele won on the toss. They will have to toss again to decide company winner.

The meet is still one of the chief topics of interest at the camp.

SEVENTY CANDLES

And All were Lighted at this Birthday Party.

Seventy tiny, burning candles on a birthday cake made a very pretty sight which Mrs. Margaret Moore, Fairfield, was called into the dining room at her home, to see last Saturday evening.

A number of friends, without her knowledge, had planned a pleasant celebration for her seventieth birthday, and the beautiful cake was the climax of the surprises.

Eighteen persons—the entire number present—quite agreed at eleven o'clock that the evening had been a most enjoyable one.

ANOTHER HOPE

William Timmins May be in National Army Camp.

The name of William Timmins appeared this week in a list of men sent to one of the cantonments in Georgia. His picture and a description of him have been sent to officers of the camp by relatives here, who ask for immediate notification if it proves to be the young man who left Pittsburgh early in the summer and has not been heard from since.

TO-NIGHT'S PROGRAM

Social, Vaudeville, and Open House, are Announced.

Soldier activities announced for this evening include a social in the Reformer recreation room, an amateur vaudeville contest in Xavier Hall, and open house in the various recreation rooms of the town.

PLANS ARE MADE BY FARM BUREAU

Adams County Farmers will Make Trip to Meeting in Lancaster County.

TO HAVE STOCK SURVEY

Series of One Day Meetings to Embrace Every Section of Adams County this Winter.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Adams County Farm Bureau, four extensive plans were outlined for the work of the next few months. The meeting was attended by F. N. Weaver, of Pennsylvania State College, and the plans include the following:

First, a livestock survey of the county. This will take in all the pure bred stock in the various townships. A census will be made and kept on file here. The work is part of a state-wide program and the returns here will be listed on bulletins which will be published at State College, and will contain the returns from all the principal counties of the state.

Second, a steer feeders campaign. This will include a trip of Adams County farmers to Lancaster County where they will attend a meeting of the steer feeders of that rich agricultural section. The meeting is to be held the latter part of October but the date has not yet been set. It is planned to take as many as possible on this trip.

Third, a movement to hold a series of one-day meetings during the winter. This is to embrace the entire county and enough meetings will be held, and at so many places, that it will not be necessary for any one to go over five miles to attend. Persons desiring such meetings held in their locality should notify the local Farm Agent, H. F. Hershey. Mr. Hershey and two visiting farm experts will make the addresses.

Fourth, an orchard survey of the county. This is to take in apples, peaches, and other fruits, and the purpose will be to get the total acreage of all growers, the different varieties grown, the ages of the trees, and the entire output. The plans will be announced later. This campaign will be part of the projected survey which is to include the entire South Mountain Fruit District, which takes in Cumberland, York, Franklin, and Adams counties, and produces ninety per cent of the commercial output of the state.

Further information about all these matters will be given out from time to time by Farm Agent Hershey who will be glad to get in touch with all those who are interested.

WAR SECRETARY AT CAMP MEADE

Distinguished Party Arrives at Cantonment soon after our Boys Get there.

START TO WORK AT ONCE

Youths Take up Work in Earnest Manner. Apparently well Aware of Big Job. All Cheerful.

Adams County boys who went to Camp Meade Thursday as the first half of this district's quota were honored, soon after their arrival, by the presence of Secretary of War Baker who dropped in on the camp to see the process of the National Army working at its normal rate.

He was accompanied by Major General Scott, chief of staff, with whom he visited the headquarters of Major General Kuhn, commanding the cantonment.

The Secretary's visit to Camp Meade was unheralded and Mr. Baker said the only salute he heard was the explosion of dynamite with which tree stumps were being blasted from the camp site.

He could not have chosen a better time. Throughout the afternoon trainload after trainload of the second contingent of the Seventy-ninth division of the great Army of Liberty arrived at the camp and the men were given their first introduction to military routine and discipline.

Their officers first had the men assembled and delivered short talks, advising them to get plenty of exercise, to become acquainted with the layout of the cantonment, when they had opportunity, and especially of the location of their particular barracks, and telling them a little something of what is expected of them in the way of discipline.

Classification work, whereby the particular abilities and qualifications of the men will be learned and they will be assigned accordingly, will begin either this afternoon or tomorrow. The task of issuing uniforms will not be started before Saturday, possibly not until Monday, and even then none of the men will get his full equipment, as the supplies are not on hand.

During intervals of the routine work of organization, non-commissioned officers may be seen here and there with groups of the selected men, instructing them in "The position of a soldier", which is the very first military instruction to be given any soldier.

The attitude of the great bulk of the men at Camp Meade is rather surprising, but highly pleasing to the officers. Some had expected to find the men surly and dissatisfied, others had predicted they would be enthusiastic and carefree. As a body, they are neither.

They are serious, sober and earnest. Their point of view seems to be that there is a very serious and highly unpleasant task to be performed, that the lot has fallen upon them to be the first to take up the burden, and that they will make the very best of it and exert their strongest efforts to get the task over as quickly as possible.

Numbered among the officers at Admiral, Md., is Spencer Sergeant Large, a grandson of General George G. Meade, in whose honor the camp was named. Lieutenant Large is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John B. Large, and is a brother of George G. Meade Large. His mother was Sarah Meade, daughter of General Meade. He was a member of the First City Troop, and received a commission after taking the course at the officers' training camp, Fort Niagara.

HAVE FINE GARAGE

Brownstone Finish to Auto Place in this County.

The York Springs Garage has been completed by its builder, Dr. H. A. Underwood.

The building was started a year ago and fronts on State street to a width of forty feet and extends along Main street sixty feet. The structure presents a brownstone finish, penciled in black and is surmounted by a red and gray tiled roof. A large skylight in the center of the roof admits sunlight and dormer windows on two sides of the hipped roof admit both air and sunshine. Two colonial columns nearly three feet in diameter support the imposing entrance to the building.

Above the entrance roof rises a miniature tower capped by a weather vane and ball. A pleasant office and waiting room occupies a section of the interior of the building to the right of the large folding entrance doors. A pump attached to a 500 gallon tank has been installed. Five gallons of gas can be placed in the tank of a car without reversing the pump.

Tourists say that from an architectural point of view it is one of the finest garage buildings they have seen outside the large cities.

ORPHANAGE NEEDS ANOTHER COTTAGE

Men and Women Find Property in First Class Condition. Build Ice House.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Hoffman Orphanage and of the Women's Auxiliary was held on Thursday. Separate meetings of the two organizations took place and then a joint session afterward.

Everything at the home was found in first class condition. The need of another cottage, to accommodate the increasing number of children for whom admission is desired, is very apparent and due note of it was taken by the visitors.

It was decided to hold the annual reunion in the future, the last Thursday in August, instead of the latter part of July or early in August. The weather has been too warm several years and it is believed the change is advisable.

It was also decided to put up an ice house where all the ice used at the home could be stored.

BINNING—DORSEY

Marriage of Former Gettysburg Girl is Announced.

Mrs. Catharine Dorsey, of Springs avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Maude Adeline, to Clyde Binning, of Lykens, on Thursday.

Mrs. Binning is very well known in Gettysburg, having been graduated at Gettysburg High School and Gettysburg College. Mr. Binning is a well known young man in his home town, and for the past ten years has been connected with the Susquehanna Coal Company, at that place, where they will make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Binning will come to Gettysburg for a few days after spending a week at Niagara Falls.

COUNT KNEW ALL ABOUT INTRIGUE

Asked his Government for Fifty Thousand to Bribe Congress. Publish Message.

WASHINGTON IS STIRRED

Secretary of State Gives out Document which May Result in Great Investigation.

(By Telegraph)

Washington, Sept. 21.—Former Ambassador Count Von Bernstorff was active in anti-American plotting while still in charge of a supposedly friendly ministry here. On January 22 he asked his own Government for an appropriation of $50,000 "to influence Congress" as on former occasions, and indicated that it could be accomplished through an unnamed organization. He thought the move "could perhaps prevent war".

The State Department to-day made public the message which Bernstorff sent his own Government on the date indicated, the document issued here this morning saying:

"The Secretary of State issues the following message from Ambassador Von Bernstorff to the Berlin Foreign Office under date of January 22, 1917:

"I request authority to pay out up to $50,000 in order, as on former occasions, to influence Congress through the organization you know of which can perhaps prevent war."

"I am beginning in the meantime to act accordingly."

"In the above circumstances a public official German declaration in favor of Ireland is highly desirable in order to gain the support of Irish influence here."

The publication of the above statement this morning was the first official and authentic information which has been given to the public that Von Bernstorff had knowledge of German intrigues in this country. It stirred official circles here more than any single incident since America's entrance into the war.

The Capitol is rife with talk of investigations and it is urged by some that in the lower House there be a call of every member to find out through what channels Bernstorff would have worked.

EXEMPTION CLAIMS

Adams County Man is Unconscious All Night, he Says.

(By Telegraph)

Harrisburg, Sept. 21.—Two Fulton County men ask exemption by the District Board because they claim they are afflicted with "shaking knees." The physicians believe the trouble is a symptom of "cold feet."

An Adams County man makes the novel plea that, when he goes to sleep at night, he loses consciousness and remains in that state until the next morning, therefore being unfit for military service.

ALLIES SMASH GERMAN LINES

Great Success is Reported in Official Statement of Field Marshal Haig.

HEAVY BARRAGE AN AID

Eight Mile Front is Traversed in Successful Assault. Germans Receive Big Bombardment.

With the Allied Armies in Flanders, Sept. 21.—The British on Thursday launched a heavy offensive against the German defenses about the Ypres salient along an extended front, a little south-east of Hooge.

Two thousand prisoners have been captured by the British, according to the official report, in the Flanders drive.

Field Marshal Haig's official report says that North Country and Australian battalions penetrated the German positions in the center to a depth of over a mile and captured the whole of their objectives. These included Hamlet, Veldhoek, and the western portion of Polygon Wood. Further north Zevenkote was captured and also a few guns.

The text of the report from Field Marshal Haig says:

"Our attack this morning east of Ypres was made on a front of about eight miles between the Ypres-Comines railway and the Ypres-Staden railway. Great success attended our troops and positions of considerable military importance have been won. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy."

Most Important

From the first moment of going over the top the assault proceeded with marked success, especially in the crucial sector between the Ypres-Roulers Railway and Hollebeke, where the British early in the day had forced their way forward over marshy ground and through woods filled with machine guns to a considerable depth, and were continuing the bitter fight in the neighborhood of the famous Inverness Copse, Nuns Wood and Glen-corse Wood, where so much blood has been shed since the Allies began the Battle of Flanders on July 31.

If the attacking forces maintain the positions to which they have advanced in this section they will have accomplished one of the most remarkable and most important achievements in recent months. The German infantry made the most determined resistance in their attempt to regain this vital ground and their artillery retaliated heavily against the British big guns.

Five Barrages

The infantry advance was preceded by a barrage of greater depth than ever before witnessed. Five distinct barrages, in fact, were dropped ahead of the men as they began their journey into this difficult terrain. The tremendous curtain of bursting steel did its work well and the troops pushed forward rapidly toward their objectives.

Fair weather lately had improved the ground somewhat, but the mud still lies deep over wide reaches of it and the whole territory is covered with water-filled shell holes, tangled barbed wire and shattered trees. The German defenses consisted largely of concrete redoubts scattered in profusion over the entire country, and from these they have been able to pour a stream of bullets into the ranks of the advancing troops. Every little elevation also held its machine-gun emplacements and all the woods were literally choked with rapid-firers.

Shelled for Week

The British encountered hard fighting at many places, but the magnificent artillery preparation had done much to make the first stage of their drive easier. The past week must have been one of misery for the German troops lying out in this section. A great number of big guns have been pouring a steady stream of high explosive shells into their territory and every now and then the British have put down a barrage which swept the land like a broom. It is known that many German batteries have been silenced in the past few days.

The Germans knew that an attack was coming, but it appears that they were unaware of the exact locality, at least until the time for the offensive arrived.

Members of Taggeblatt Staff Say Evidence not Sufficient.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—Demurrers against their indictment were filed in the federal district court Thursday, when the five members of the staff of the Philadelphia Taggeblatt were called up for arraignment on charges of making and conveying false reports to promote the success of the enemies of the United States, and two of them on the charge of treason. The men were arrested 10 days ago, when the offices of the German newspaper were raided by federal agents.

HEADS BELGIAN RELIEF

Jonkheer Charles Ruys de Beerenbroek, a noted Dutchman, has been appointed as head of the Belgian relief commission, succeeding Herbert Hoover, America's food chief.

The Jonkheer is a Roman Catholic deputy for a Limburg constituency and a son of the queen's commission for that province. He is an expert social worker and has given much assistance to Belgian refugees.

Hoover built a complete organization for the Belgian relief work and it is running so smoothly that the Jonkheer will have little trouble in continuing the great machinery for the distribution of food and clothing for the needy in Belgium.

EIGHT CENTS IS PRICE FOR SUGAR

Conference of Producers with Food Administration Results this Way.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Beet sugar producers in conference with the Food Administration Thursday reached a unanimous agreement under which the stable retail price of sugar will be about eight cents a pound. They will sell to wholesalers at Eastern refining points at 7 1/2 cents a pound, cane basis, and the retail price, it was stated, would normally be not more than 3/4 cent higher.

At the same time the Food Administration announced that an international committee of five had been named to arrange for the purchase and distribution of the vast quantities of sugar needed by the United States and Allied countries.

Details of the sugar distributing plan will be worked out by a Food Administration committee. American cane sugar representatives, it is believed, will take action similar to that of the beet sugar men within a week. Most cane producers already have agreed to a 7 1/2 cent price, or its equivalent, but this is not regarded as final until the decision is unanimous. The objections of about 10 per cent of the beet sugar men to the low price were composed at a final conference Thursday.

The new sugar price will become effective in the West October 1, when the 1917 crop reaches the refineries, and in the East about two weeks later. The present price of beet sugar to wholesalers is about 8.4 cents a pound.

GREAT TASK DONE

Great Central Span Bolted After 150-foot Lift.

Quebec, Sept. 21.—The central span of the Quebec cantilever bridge was successfully bolted into place Thursday afternoon at 3:28 o'clock, linking together the arms of the largest bridge of its kind in the world. The hoisting operation began last Monday morning, and the span, which weighs 5,000 tons, was lifted by hydraulic jacks a distance of 150 feet from pontoons on the St. Lawrence River.

The successful completion of the bridge will mean the fulfillment of a 50-year engineering dream. It will be some months before trains can be run over the structure, as there is much detail work to be carried out. The running time between Halifax and Winnipeg will be reduced half a day. One detail is the painting of the bridge, which, it is estimated, will take three years and cost $35,000.

FEW DESERTERS IN DRAFT ARMY

Little Complaining Heard among Men, Declares Provost Marshal Crowder.

300,000 TAKE TRAINING Success of Mobilization is Told by Messages from Many Parts of the United States.

Washington, Sept. 21.—"Everything going smoothly. Movement proceeding according to schedule."

This was the gist of messages received Thursday by Provost Marshal General Crowder from practically every state in the country. It told of tremendous success attending America's first heavy mobilization, the moving of more than 300,000 drafted men from their homes to the cantonments.

The messages came from governors and from camp commanders. Within the last two days approximately 120,000 men have been transported to mobilization camps. From messages received here there have been few cases of desertion, little grumbling, scarcely any breakdowns in the mobilization machinery.

The movement of drafted men will now be practically continuous until late in October. From 10,000 to 60,000 a day will be moved to the camps. The mobilization of the present 40 per cent or more will be completed only in time to begin on the next 40 per cent, ordered out on October 5 and succeeding days. No date has yet been set for the mobilization of the final batch, which will bring the full quota of 687,000 conscripts to the camps. It is expected that October 15, or some date within a week of that, will be selected.

Meanwhile preparations were being made by the War Department Thursday for the examination of the 7,000,000 men left over from the present draft. Secretary Baker has ordered that these men be examined and enrolled for military service or exempted, as the case may be. By this means each registered man would know where he stood and could shape his private affairs to the necessary end.

The Provost Marshal General's office yesterday let it be known that it is prepared to send orders to each local board to start on the work immediately, it is authorized by the Secretary's office. It is expected that orders will be transmitted to General Crowder to-day.

WARRANT FOR MAYOR SMITH

Charges Conspiracy in Election Killing, Police Lieutenant also Named.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—Warrants charging conspiracy in connection with the killing Wednesday of a policeman and the assault of two other men by alleged Jersey City "gunmen" in the Republican factional contest in the Fifth Ward, were sworn out Thursday night for Mayor Thomas B. Smith, Police Lieutenant David Bennett and Isaac Deutsch, candidate for Select Council and opponent of James A. Carey, for the leadership of the ward.

The warrants, which were sworn out by Isadore Stern, a member of the state legislature, were not served, but by agreement of counsel the three men are to appear before Judge Brown in the Municipal Court to-day.

Jacob Mascia, alleged slayer of Policeman George A. Eppley, and John Costello, an alleged accessory in the murder, were held without bail Thursday in the City Hall Police Court to await the action of the coroner. The two men were also charged with assault and battery with intent to kill John H. Maurer, an assistant district attorney.

SERGEANT INTERNED

Result of Intercepted Letter Written to Sister in Germany.

Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Sept. 21.—Sergeant Alfred Bonhaut, of the Sixth United States Infantry, who served with General Pershing in Mexico, has been discharged from the army, it was learned to-day, and interned at the German prison camp here as an enemy alien.

Bonhaut's dismissal from the Army followed the intercepting of a letter which he wrote to his sister in Germany, in which he expressed regret that the United States had entered the war against Germany and the hope that he would not have to fight against his native land.

His internment, with other Germans here, was ordered by the Bureau of Immigration.

RECOVERS POWER OF SPEECH

Joseph Getzelowitz, dumb from birth, suddenly recovered his power of speech in Bellevue hospital, New York, while recovering from a fall.

Several boys had been tormenting Getzelowitz in Henry street, near the home of his sister, where he lived. In chasing the boys, he stumbled and fell. A policeman picked him up and had him sent to Bellevue. There the physicians examined the young Russian and found that his vocal chords had all the appearances of being normal and in their opinion simply lacked the will to talk. While reading a prayer book he suddenly began speaking Yiddish with ease and perfect pronunciation.

He now speaks a few words of English.

DECLARES POLES TO BE STARVING

Warsaw Has Many Riots, Reports Man who was Permitted to Leave.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Starvation and rioting in Warsaw and other sections of Poland occupied by the Germans have so increased that Germany has authorized relief workers to seek funds wherever they may be found. The Red Cross headquarters at Genoa and agents of the Rockefeller Fund have been called upon for help.

This information reached here from a man in Switzerland who has been attending to the work of distributing relief in Poland and who was allowed to leave the country by the Germans on condition that he raise more money. The general condition of Poland, the message said, is deplorable. Prices of food have risen to such an extent that none but the richest can buy, the poor are literally starving, and the mortality among the children is described as shocking.

Hatred of the Germans is said to be so intense that women attack German soldiers in the streets and gendarmes have been forbidden to patrol the country at night, as many of them had disappeared. It is plainly evident, according to the dispatch, that the Germans are apprehensive of disturbances by the considerate treatment given rioters.

WHEAT FED TO HOGS

Substituted for Corn by Farmers Who Balk at Price.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Sept. 21.—Wheat is being fed to hogs and other live stock as a substitute for corn in many counties of Northeastern Oklahoma and, pending governmental action, very little additional wheat will be marketed from these counties at the price fixed by the food administration, according to a statement by the State Board of Agriculture.

The action of the farmers is due to a number of causes, chief of which is the scarcity of corn for feeding purposes, coupled with the fact that the farmer feels the government has placed an arbitrary price upon his product at a time when the law of supply and demand is in his favor, without at the same time fixing them prices of other articles for his consumption.

WAGES NOT TOO HIGH AT CAMPS

Say Construction Work was not Put through on Extravagance.

EXPERT ADVISER SPEAKS

Largest Contractors Had Small Margin of Profit, he Claims, and Stories are often Absurd.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Major W. A. Starrett, chief expert adviser in the building of America's sixteen cantonment camps for the draft armies, today officially denied that exorbitant wages were paid laborers on the work.

Statements have been made, it was suggested, that abnormal and high wages were paid; that water boys for instance, received $5 a day in some places.

"Perfectly absurd," said Major Starrett. "Look at the situation and see for yourself. Here are the largest contractors in the country. Their margin of profit is very small, averaging about three and a half per cent. Also they desire to serve the country."

"Take a certain company as an example. If they were out to pay big money or hold up the government they could have laid down on the job just as well as not when the terms of the contract were violated by the government. But they didn't. Not only that, but the head of the concern himself put a million dollars of his own money into the job to keep it going for the government."

"Are people like that going to pay water boys $5 a day?"

"The government has a very competent organization made up of civilian officers, reserve corps men, men who came out of the big engineering concerns. Were they likely to pay $5? It's absurd."

"Were middle men used in buying supplies?"

"In some instances yes," said Major Starrett. "We dealt with a middle man in buying plumbing supplies. If we had bought them direct we would have had to buy from twenty five different manufacturers, one part from each, bolts, washers, pipes, nickel plates and so on."

"We made one company the assembling agent, the middle man and the government allowed them five per cent on the cost. Anybody approaching this subject intelligently will know that the middle man there was necessary and that he earned his profit. Generally speaking, however, we have dealt with all manufacturers direct."

"To give some idea of the enormity of the task Major Starrett said: 'We spent $150,000,000 in three months. We provided 600 cubic feet of air space for each man, as compared with 360 feet for each man in European cantonments. There are 2,000 buildings in each cantonment, or 32,000 in all. They are so built for fire protection that only one building can burn at a time.'

"We saved $12,000,000 on the camps by building them two stories instead of one. Each cantonment occupies two square miles of territory, roughly. In addition to the gigantic cantonment construction work there is still under our direction $350,000,000 worth more of building in progress or contemplation. We used four billion feet of lumber from 190 mills throughout the country. We built 4000 miles of finished road surface. Roads approaching the camps will add another few hundred miles. We used 2000 miles of piping for the water supply systems, and 2000 miles of drainage and sewerage pipes."

"It took a carload of tanks to put the tar-paper on the roofs. Railroads delivered from fifty to one hundred and fifty carloads of materials to each camp every day. There were about 8,000 carloads of materials in all. We took care of 8,000 to 10,000 workmen at each camp every day. Some camps had a weekly payroll of $150,000. The government had about 150 representatives in each camp. On one job the contractors held a foremen's meeting every morning, 300 to 500 foremen gathering to discuss plans."

"We had our own fire protection system. Also a corps of fire watchers, a police force to put out the fires."

The Proper Attitude.

The proper attitude of a man toward woman is not a very complicated affair. The fellow who admires her if she's beautiful, honors her if she is a mother, respects her if she works, has sympathy for her if she is in distress, and pities her if she stumbles in a fair way to become a gentleman.—Houston Post.

Optimistic Thought.

A woman who has never been pretty has never been young.

MUSICAL TREAT FOR TOWN

F. Hayes Harmon has undertaken what might be termed a gigantic task, as he has booked four great artists for recitals in Chambersburg this winter. The first artist will be Evan Williams, who will appear there on the evening of Friday, November 2. Mr. Williams is one of the foremost American tenors, and is booked much for the season. The second artist will be Reinold Werrenrath, a great American baritone, who appeared to a capacity house with the Hagerstown Choral Society last May. Mr. Werrenrath will give a recital Tuesday, January 8.

The third artist is one of America's foremost sopranos, Mabel Garrison, who also appeared to a capacity house last spring, in Hagerstown. Miss Garrison will appear Tuesday, February 26. The fourth artist will climax all endeavors in the musical world in Chambersburg and in fact the Cumberland Valley. No world's famous artist like this one has ever appeared anywhere this side of Harrisburg, and as Harrisburg turned out 2500 people to greet her, Chambersburg should welcome her with a packed house and sell standing room at a premium.

This wonderful singer is Madame Schuman-Heink, the world's greatest contralto, who needs no introduction to the music lovers of Chambersburg and vicinity, and Mr. Harmon had to carry on lengthy negotiations before a date could be arranged. It is understood that Madame Schuman-Heink's fee there for this recital will establish a new record for that vicinity, as Mr. Harmon has undertaken a big undertaking in booking this artist. Madame Schuman-Heink will appear on Tuesday, April 30. All of these concerts will be given in the Orpheum Theatre.

GOOD HEADWAY IN EQUIPPING ARMY

Big Task Confronted War Department at Start but Progress is Satisfactory.

OVERCOME DIFFICULTIES

Industrial Plants were Promptly Expanded to Meet Needs and Shortages are Met.

The Quartermaster Department, with the approval of the Secretary of War, announces that the task of equipping an army of nearly 2,000,000 men is progressing as rapidly as the peace-time industries of the country can be extended to meet war conditions.

Minor inconveniences and shortages, which developed as the cantonments are opened, will be temporary. The Quartermaster Department and those filling equipment orders have overcome a number of handicaps, and under the circumstances the response of American industry to extraordinary demands has been remarkable.

Confronted With Big Task

With the outbreak of the war the War Department was confronted with the task of equipping a great army, and the work began almost from the ground up. More than $3,000,000,000 must be expended by the Quartermaster Department for the first year of the war. The department and the industries of the country, with the machinery and capacity of peace times, was unexpectedly called upon to clothe, feed, and house an army many times larger than the peace strength army of nonmilitaristic nation.

Difficulties arose from the outset. There was a shortage of wool, a shortage of duck for tentage and leggings, a shortage of fast dyes for uniforms, and a shortage of labor. There was no appreciable shortage of cotton, but a shortage of looms.

Are Overcoming Difficulties

These difficulties have been and are being gradually overcome. All along the line industrial establishments had to be expanded to meet unprecedented demands.

The food situation at each cantonment and abroad is reported as gratifying and the Quartermaster Department has experienced few difficulties in the supply of food. Such shortages as may occur in equipment are attributed to the causes outlined above.

These difficulties have been and are being gradually overcome. All along the line industrial establishments had to be expanded to meet unprecedented demands.

EXPECT TO SEE SERVICE ABROAD

State Militia Battalion in Rainbow Division is Making Preparations.

ARE MACHINE GUN MEN

Well Trained and Only Worried for Fear they May not Get to Front as Early as they Hope.

Camp Mills, Hempstead, L. I., Sept. 21.—In camp between the Iowa infantry regiment and the Minnesota field artillery, the 149th Machine Gun Battalion, Pennsylvania's representative in the Rainbow Division, is completing its preparation for service in Europe.

The order to embark can't come too soon for the boys from Pennsylvania. A correspondent of the United Press visited their camp and found them an enthusiastic, well-trained outfit, worried only by vague rumors that they might not be permitted to see overseas service.

Life at Camp Mills is mostly work. Despite the demands of army routine, however, the members of the outfit devote some of their attention to the lighter side of camp life.

One of the entertainers of the battalion is John Rinker, of Reading, who belongs to Company I. Rinker is a natural comedian and when an organ-grinder paid the Keystone boys a visit recently, John acted as monkey with such success that he collected a great deal of change from his comrades. David Blouir, of Barbertown, the company's champion pugilist, has met all comers without losing his title and is looking for more matches.

Members of Company I are awaiting a chance for First Lieutenant Victor Gorman, of Lebanon, to display his prowess with the rifle and revolver. Gorman holds the distinguished rifleman's medal, besides honors in target events in Pennsylvania.

Charles Kaegy, of Hanover, furnishes amusement for the whole battalion with his "Charlie Chaplin Comedy." One of the hardest-working members of Company K, is Sergeant ("Rev.") Charles Houck, who was graduated from the Overbrook Theological Seminary before joining the Pennsylvania troops.

Company L is the foot ball aggregation of the battalion. Recalling their success on the border, members of this outfit are planning to put a team in the field to meet all comers. Seven members of the company who are of a musical turn of mind are proud of their ukelele club.

Captain Frank M. Godley, Easton, is himself a graduate of Lafayette College and has a number of men from that institution in his company. Lehigh University men predominate in Company M, which is headed by Captain John J. Shonk, a former foot ball star. Edward R. Smith, his first sergeant, was a prize athlete in Staunton military academy. John Chisholm, who was wounded by a shell at the battle of Ypres, where he fought as a member of the 165th Canadian Overseas Regiment, is anxious for another chance at the Boches. All the men in Company M are from Bethlehem.

TO OUR READERS

The Gettysburg Times takes absolutely no part in politics, being neutral on all such matters. Anything that appears in our general news columns, concerning state or national politics, is furnished us by The American Press Association, a concern which gives the same news to Republican, Democratic, Prohibition, or Socialist papers and which is strictly non-partisan.

EVERYBODY GETS IT

When we tell you that almost 1000 copies of The Times are distributed to paying subscribers in Gettysburg every evening you can have some idea of the way the people of the town read the paper. The population is estimated at 4500, and at the usual average of five to a family, there would be only 900 residences in the town.

When we tell you that no less than 115 copies of The Times go daily to subscribers in Biglerville, 90 in Arendtsville, 65 in Bendersville, and 55 in Aspers, you can see how the upper end of the county reads the paper. And the routes from Biglerville, Bendersville, and Gardners take hundreds more.

When we tell you that Littlestown receives 78 copies of The Times each evening, and New Oxford almost 50, that Hunterstown, and all the other towns in that general section contribute their full share you can realize how completely The Times covers that neighborhood.

When our list shows 75 subscribers in Fairfield, 47 in Cashtown, 61 at Orrtanna, and 32 at McKnightstown, you can get some conception of the percentage of people who take The Times in the western end of the county.

And about 800 papers on Gettysburg's rural routes every day bring all those people into close touch with the town.

Consider the above figures a bit, think over the sizes of the various towns mentioned and then notice how many papers go there, and you will readily see that almost everybody reads

THE TIMES.

He was less steady than he had been. The heat of the little flat brought more blood to his head. He wavered as he stood just inside the door.

"You must go back to your wife."

"She doesn't want me. She's in love with a fellow at the house."

"Palmer, huh?"

"I only want to take you out for a good time. I've got money. Look here!"

He drew out a roll of bills and showed it to her. Her eyes opened wide. She had never known him to have much money.

"Lots more where that comes from."

A new look flashed into her eyes, not cupidity, but purpose.

She was instantly cunning.

"Aren't you going to give me some of that?"

"What for?"

"I want it for Johnny Rosenfeld."

He thrust it back into his pocket, but his hand retained its grasp of it.

"That's it," he complained. "Don't let me be happy for a minute! Throw it all up to me!"

"You give me that for the Rosenfeld boy, and I'll go out with you."

"If I give you all that, I won't have any money to go out with!"

But his eyes were wavering. She could see victory.

"Take off enough for the evening."

But he drew himself up.

"It's my lucky day," he said thickly.

"Plenty more where this came from."

Do anything for you. Give it to the little devil. I—"

He had dropped back on his chair; he propped his sagging legs on a stool.

She knew him—knew that he would sleep almost all night. She would have to make up something to tell the other girls; but no matter—she could attend to that later.

She paused, in planning on her hat, to count the bills. She had never had a thousand dollars in her hands before.

CHAPTER XXIV.

K. spent all of the evening of that day with Wilson. He was not to go for Joe until eleven o'clock. The injured man's vitality was standing him in good stead. He had asked for Sidney and she was at his bedside. Doctor Ed had gone.

K. found Sidney in the room, not sitting, but standing by the window. The sick man was dozing. One shaded light burned in a far corner. She turned slowly and met his eyes. It seemed to her that she looked at him as if she had never really seen him before, and he was right. Readjustments are always difficult.

Sidney was trying to reconcile the K.

She was not in uniform. She wore a dark skirt and white waist and her high heels tapped as she crossed the room. She came directly to him.

"He is better, isn't he?"

"He is rallying. Of course it will be a day or two before we are quite sure."

She stood looking down at Wilson's quiet figure.

"I guess you know I've been crazy about him," she said quietly. "Well, that's all over. He never really cared for me. I played his game and I—lost. I've been expelled from the school."

Quite suddenly she dropped on her knees beside the bed, and put her cheek close to the sleeping man's hand. When after a moment she rose, she was controlled again, calm, very white.

She turned toward the door. But K. could not let her go like that. Her face frightened him. It was too calm, too controlled. He followed her across the room.

"What are your plans?"

"I haven't any. I'm about through with my training, but I've lost my diploma."

"I don't like to see you going away like this."

She avoided his eyes, but his kindly tone did what neither the Head nor the executive committee had done that day. It shook her control.

"What does it matter to you? You don't owe me anything."

"Perhaps not. One way and another I've known you a long time."

"You never knew anything very good."

"I'll tell you where I live, and—"

"I know where you live."

"Will you come to see me there? We may be able to think of something."

"What is there to think of? This story will follow me wherever I go! I've tried twice for a diploma and failed. What's the use?"

But in the end he prevailed on her to promise not to leave the city until she had seen him again. It was not until she had gone, a straight figure with haunted eyes, that he reflected whimsically that once again he had defeated his own plans for flight.

Sidney brought her letter to Joe back to K. She was flushed with the effort and with a new excitement.

"The most remarkable thing has happened. What a day this has been! Somebody has sent Johnny Rosenfeld a lot of money. The ward nurse wants you to come back."

The ward had settled for the night. The well-ordered beds of the daytime were chaotic now, torn apart by tossing figures. The night was hot and an electric fan hummed in a far corner. Under its sporadic breezes, as it turned, the ward was trying to sleep.

Johnny Rosenfeld was not asleep. An incredible thing had happened to him. A fortune lay under his pillow. He was sure it was there, for ever since it came his hot hand had clutched it.

He was quite sure that somehow or other K. had had a hand in it. When he disclaimed it, the boy was bewildered.

"I'll buy the old lady what she wants for the house, anyhow," he said.

"But I hope nobody's took up a collection for me. I don't want no charity."

"Maybe Mr. Howe sent it."

"You can bet your last match he didn't."

In some unknown way the news had reached the ward that Johnny's friend, Mr. Le Moyne, was a great surgeon.

Johnny had rejected it scornfully.

But the story had seized on his imagination.

"Say, Mr. Le Moyne."

"Yes, Jack."

He called him "Jack." The boy liked it. It savored of man to man. After all, he was a man, or almost. Hadn't he driven a car? Didn't he have a state license?

"They say that you're a surgeon; that you operated on Doctor Wilson and saved his life. They say that you're the king pin where you came from."

He eyed K. wistfully. "I know it's a lie, but if it's true—Don't you think you could do something for me, sir?"

When K. did not reply at once, he launched into an explanation.

"I've been lying here a good while. I didn't say much because I knew I'd have to take a chance. Either I'd pull through or I wouldn't, and the odds were—well, I didn't say much. The old lady's had a lot of trouble. But now, with this under my pillow for her, I've got a right to ask. I'll take a chance, if you will."

"It's only a chance, Jack."

"I know that. But lie here and watch these soaks off the street. Old, a lot of them, and gettin' well to go out and starve, and—Mr. Le Moyne, they can walk, and I can't."

K. drew a long breath. He had started, and now he must go on. Faith in himself or no faith, he must go on. Life, that had loosed its hold on him for a time, had found him again.

"I'll go over your carefully tomorrow, Jack. I'll tell you your chances honestly."

"I have a thousand dollars. Whatever you charge—"

"I'll take it out of my board bill in the new house!"

At four o'clock that morning K. got back from seeing Joe off. The trip had been without accident.

Over Sidney's letter Joe had shed a shamefaced tear or two. And during the night ride, with K. pushing the car to the utmost, he had felt that the boy, in keeping his hand in his pocket, had kept it on the letter. When the road was smooth and stretched ahead, a gray-white line into the night, he tried to talk a little courage into the boy's sick heart.

"You'll see new people, new life," he said. "In a month from now you'll wonder why you ever hung around the Street. I have a feeling that you're going to make good down there."

And once, when the time for parting was very near—

"No matter what happens, keep on believing in yourself. I lost my faith in myself once. It was pretty close to hell."

Joe's response showed his entire self-engrossment.

"If he dies, I'm a murderer."

"He's not going to die," said K. stoutly.

At four o'clock in the morning he left the car at the garage and walked around to the little house. He had had no sleep for forty-five hours; his eyes were sunken in his head; the skin over his temples looked drawn and white. His clothes were wrinkled; the soft hat he habitually wore was white with the dust of the road.

As he opened the hall door, Christine stirred in the room beyond. She came out fully dressed.

"K., are you sick?"

"Rather tired. Why in the world aren't you in bed?"

"Palmer has just come home in a terrible rage. He says he's been robbed of a thousand dollars."

"Where?"

Christine shrugged her shoulders.

"He doesn't know, or says he doesn't. I'm glad of it. He seems thoroughly frightened. It may be a lesson."

In the dim hall light he realized that her face was strained and set. She looked on the verge of hysteria.

"Poor little woman," he said. "I'm sorry, Christine."

The tender words broke down the last barrier of her self-control.

"Oh, K.! Take me away. Take me away! I can't stand it any longer."

She held her arms out to him, and because he was very tired and lonely, and because more than anything else in the world just then he needed a woman's arms, he drew her to him and held her close, his cheek to her hair.

"Poor girl!" he said. "Poor Christine! Surely there must be some happiness for us somewhere."

But the next moment he let her go and stepped back.

"I'm sorry. Characteristically he took the blame. "I shouldn't have done that—You know how it is with me."

"Will it always be Sidney?"

"I'm afraid it will always be Sidney."

LADIES' SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back its Color and Lustre with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

TO AID FAMILIES OF U. S. FIGHTERS

Red Cross Undertakes to Care for the Dependents of Soldiers and Sailors.

PREPARE FOR A LARGE TASK

"Not Work of Charity, but Most Sacred Duty to See That They Lack for No Comfort," Says
Director Lies.

By CHARLES LEE BRYSON.
Chicago.—Many an American soldier and sailor will fight with infinitely stronger spirit in this war for the knowledge that the American Red Cross is standing firm between those he leaves at home, and the grim specter of want. For the announcement has gone forth from Washington that the families of fighting men are to be under the protection of the great humanitarian arm of the government.

The whole world knows of the work the Red Cross has done in caring for the sick and wounded in war, relieving the distress of the victims of fire and flood, earthquake, famine and tornado in civil disaster, and organizing base hospitals for the army and navy. But few realize that while all this was being done, preparation was under way to look after the loved ones whom the fighting men will leave at home.

When the United States troops were at the Mexican border the Red Cross found it necessary to make provision for the families of many Guardsmen who had left dependents at home. This made plain what must be done in case an army of a million men should be called abroad, and with characteristic Red Cross forehandedness a plan was at once formulated. So far as possible, the war department will choose men who have no dependents; but in spite of everything many a married man, many a son whose mother depends on him, and many others to whom relatives look for support, will go to the front.
It is these who are left behind that will be watched over by the Red Cross.

Department of Family Relief.
To safeguard those who may need our care, the Red Cross has established, under the director general of civilian relief, a new department called that of family relief. It has called to the head of this department Eugene T.
Lies, for many years general superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago, a man of wide experience and ripe judgment.

Mr. Lies was one of those who attended a conference of national and division officers of the Red Cross, called at Chicago by John J. O'Connor, director of the central division, and at this conference Mr. Lies outlined his policy. Later, at the National Conference of Charities at Pittsburgh, Mr.
Lies enlarged upon this subject. He made it very plain that it is a labor of love, and in no sense of charity, that the Red Cross has undertaken.

"We must remember," said Mr. Lies,
"that there is not the faintest shadow of 'charity' in its usual meaning, attached to this work we are undertaking. If there is want among the families of our soldiers and sailors, it is not because they have been idle or wasteful, or imprudent, or that they have been in anywise to blame. Rather it is because they have done the finest and the noblest thing possible, and have given to their country those to whom they have looked for support and protection."

"We go to them, not as doing them a charity, but as expressing our gratitude to them for what they have done—as a duty we owe to those whom they have given to fight our battles. Looking at it in this light, we can see how little we can afford to permit any one of these to suffer because of the noble thing they have done."

Task a Big One.
The officers of the Red Cross have shown a large grasp of the situation.
They realize the task that will be theirs. This is shown in a part of Mr.

Lies' Pittsburgh talk, in which he said that very soon there will be 300,000 National Guardsmen in the field, and that "by January 1 next it is altogether possible that there will be under arms about 2,500,000 men in all branches of the service."

"We must prepare for a large task, to be executed through the civilian relief committee of the various Red Cross chapters. These committees should have carefully chosen members,

some, at least, of whom have experience in social work."

It is not merely as a feeding and clothing agency that the Red Cross proposes to act toward these dependents, as Mr. Lies points out, but as a sort of "next friend" in all troubles such as wages, insurance, difficulties with landlords, illness, accident and the moral welfare of children.

"We would show ourselves unfit to enjoy the blessings of democracy," says Mr. Lies, "if, while sending our soldiers to the front to fight the enemy, we permitted their families at home to fight want, disease, and moral dangers alone. It would look like willful punishment for the sacrifices made by them."

"Only by getting close to them through friendly visitation, sympathetic inquiry, neighborliness and intelligent interpretation of home conditions, can untoward factors be discovered. The Red Cross is in the field to do just this kind of service in addition to supplementary relief work, and it wants to do it as thoroughly as possible."

It is in this spirit, then, that the Red Cross is approaching the task of protecting the dependents left behind by the fighting men. Backed by the American people, there is no room for doubt as to how it will perform this task.

CALL BRITISH TARS "LIMEYS"

American Bluejackets in European Waters Have Nickname for Everything They See.

London.—American bluejackets on duty in European waters have a nickname of their own for England's sailors and soldiers. They call them
"limeys;" the individual being known as a "lime." The American sailor men apply the designation to all English fighters just as the British refer to their soldiers as "Tommys."

The sailor from the United States has his nickname for nearly everything he sees. Bluejackets who had served in the near and far East first started calling British sailors and soldiers "lime juicers," because of their fondness for fruit juice and charged water.

Now the designation has been shortened down and everything British is "limey." British soldiers' and sailors' clubs are known as "limey clubs," and British-brewed lager beer is commonly spoken of as "limey beer."

Aged Mother of Twenty-Eight.
Chino, Cal.—Mrs. Paul Aguilar, who has been married 38 years, recently gave birth to her twenty-eighth child, a boy. Mrs. Aguilar, who is fifty-three years old, was married when she was fifteen. She has had three sets of twins, and all but two of the children are living.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

A RUN ON CABBAGE.

CREAMED CABBAGE.—One quart skimmed or whole milk, one-half cupful of olive oil, butter or meat fat, one-half cupful flour, two teaspoonfuls salt, one quart boiled cabbage. Melt the fat and stir into it the flour. When these are thoroughly mixed add the cold milk and cook until the flour is cooked, stirring constantly until the milk boils. Mix this sauce with the cabbage and reheat if necessary.

CREAMED Cabbage With Cheese.—
Variation of the plain creamed cabbage may be made by melting one-quarter cupful of cheese cut in small pieces in the thickened milk.

Scalloped Cabbage.—The creamed cabbage may be put into buttered baking dish, covered with buttered crumbs and baked in the oven until the food is hot and the crumbs are browned. This is then called scalloped cabbage.

Cabbage au Gratin.—Creamed cabbage with cheese may be put into a buttered baking dish, covered with butered crumbs and baked in the oven until the food is hot and the crumbs are brown.

Baked Stuffed Cabbage.—Prepare the cabbage as in boiled stuffed cabbage.
Tie it in shape with a string and bake in a moderate oven, basting it occasionally with a mixture of fat and water. Any left over cabbage may be cut in slices and reheated until slightly browned in a little fat.

Pork Tack (Hawaiian).—One pound fresh pork, one onion, one cabbage, one pound rice, salt. Cut the fat portions of the pork into small pieces, fry out the fat and cook the chopped onion in the fat. Add the lean portion of the pork cut in small pieces, the chopped cabbage and enough water to prevent the mixture from burning when heated. Cook slowly until the cabbage is tender, adding water if necessary.
Add salt to taste. Serve on a platter around a mound of boiled rice.

My Clerk

By JAMES BRAINARD

The outlaws was thick around Toomstone county, and I kep' a store there. I sold 'em goods and trusted 'em when they hadn't no money, for you kin trust two kinds o' people—them as is honest and them as is at open war with the rest o' the world. It's the middle classes that beats you. There was one on 'em—the outlaws, I mean—that I didn't want around, for he'd carried things too far and there was a price set on his head. That was Dandy Jim. Dandy Jim's head was worth $1,000 to any man that could git the drop on him.

One day a young woman came to my place and wanted to work in my store. I tole her I didn't want a woman, but she said she'd work for her board, and after talkin' to my wife about it I engaged her. She could do most anything, but she was handiest about keepin' my accounts. She must 'a' been a schoolmarm, for one day she took account o' stock and figured up and tole me 'sactly what I was worth.

I never had bothered to take count o' stock; seemed sort o' useless-like. Wife and I had allus been pretty frugal, and I calculated in the rough that I had somepin over $2,000. I felt kinder troubled when she said I was worth just a little over $1,000.

"If I could git Dandy Jim," I said to her, "and turn him in dead or alive I'd be worth $2,000."

"But they say Dandy Jim's a hard man to take," she said.

"Maybe he'll come around here some day and I'll try it."

"How would you manage it?"

"If I knowed he was a comin' I'd put some um outside to cover him. Then if he got the drop on me I'd signal the outsider to shoot him."

"What kind of a signal would you give? He'd shoot you before you could make any signs."

"Well, he'd likely tell me to throw up my hands, and that would be as good a signal as any."

"You're purty smart," she said. "I didn't give you credit for so much sense."

One day the gal tole me that the stock was a-gittin' low and if she was me she'd sell the balance and go and lay in a complete new outfit. She was sich a good business woman that I did whatever she said, and I got up a "sale" and cleaned out everything. It fetched just $1,200 in money, and with this I concluded to put in the new outfit. The day before I went away I rode out to collect a debt of $50. I had a safe in which I kep' the $1,200 on hand and didn't worry about it, for none o' the outlaws could open it, and it was too heavy for 'em to carry away.

The gal tole me I might as well leave her the combination in case any one wanted any bills paid, but I was too sharp for that. Not that I doubted her honesty, but that some o' the outlaws might come along and force her to open it.

Well, I got my $50, and when I was a-ridin' up to the store I see the gal a-comin' excited-like to meet me.

"What's up?" says I.

"Dandy Jim's there waitin' for you."

"Humph," says I. "What's he goin' to do with me? Kill me?"

"Oh, no; he won't kill you. If you was dead who'd open the safe?"

"I see."

"You might do what you said you would if he came."

"What was that?"

"Have some one cover him when you go in and when he tells you to throw up your hands shoot him."

"There isn't a man about the place."

"Reckon I'll do. I'm as good a shot as any man."

Well, I posted her at a window with a rifle right where she could see the man; then I walked into the house and the room where Dandy Jim was a-settin'.

"Howdy, Jim," I says. "Howdy," says he. "Jim," says I, "there's $1,000 offered for you. Reckon I might as well have it as any one." "How you goin' to git it?" he answers. "Well, there's two ways. One is dead, and the other's alive—whichever you prefer." "I prefer dead," says he, "and, considerin' I've got my hand on my gun, I thinks it's you that's dead. I'll trouble you to throw up your hands." "If I does that," I says, "the drop's on you, seein' it is a signal." "You're mighty smart," he says. "It's only takin' time by the forelock," says I. "Who have you got outside?" "One o' the best shots in Arizona, though nothin' but a woman."

"Yes, and mighty smart if she is a woman."

"How do you know that?" "Because she's my wife. I sent her here to git you to turn your stock into cash; then she sent for me to take it in."

"Is that the game?" I asked, a cold chill runnin' down my spine. "You can find out," he says, "if you'll throw up your hands." "I'll do it," says I, "and if you're lyin' you'll pay for the deception with your life."

With that I throwed up both hands, and the gal instead o' shootin' comes to the window grinnin' and asks me if that was the signal and whether we hadn't better wait a spell and if it wouldn't be cruel to shoot a man in cold blood.

Then I knowed the game was up, so I tole 'em I'd open the safe—for it was plain I was a dead man if I didn't—and while the gal kep' me covered Jim took the plunder, includin' the $50 I'd just collected. Then the gal tok my best horse and my wife's saddle, and as they galloped away she sung out:

"I made a mistake in the accounts. There's $1,000 to be charged up to profit and loss."

Knew No Better Then.

"He eloped with his wife, didn't he, William?" "Yes—but, you know, they weren't married then."—Life.
